Calling

With the UC-One desktop or mobile app, you get the mobility, continuity and professionalism you need. Make work calls on-the-go and travel with easy access to your call history, visual voicemail and company directories. Plus, your business number will be presented across all devices, so you never have to use your personal number for business ever again.

Messaging

Your inbox is cluttered enough as it is. Minimize email overload by skipping the subject lines and exchanging messages in real time. Take advantage of presence indicators that show who's available for calling, chatting and meeting. And with universal search, you can find what you need instantly by searching across people, messages and spaces.

Meeting

"Meeting Rooms" give you the ability to invite coworkers to a private meeting space without the hassle of dial-in numbers and passcodes. It's a virtual office space where you can share your entire screen, a window or application just as you would in person. And with moderator controls, you can view all participants, mute users and see the active speaker in real time.

Collaborating

With the increased popularity of remote workers, collaboration is more critical than ever. UC-One allows you to drag and drop files into dedicated collaborative work spaces for effortless sharing and organization. It's all about ease of access here; easily locate documents and information with the search function across all channels at all times.
